THE DAILY BULLETIN.
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 1, 1885.

CHOLERA has broken out again in Spain.

The municipal election at Cincinnati takes place next Monday.

The National debt including the Pacific Railroad indebtedness, is $1,980,000,000.

D. R. FRANCIS, Democratic nominee for Mayor of St. Louis, is a Kentuckian. He was born in Richmond, Madison County.

MICHIGAN Democrats prefer a South American mission where it doesn't cost so much to live as a first-class European mission.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND has a regular hobby for robust health in applicants for office. A sickly man stands no show whatever.

POSTMASTER General Vilas intends first to weed out the Mahone postmasters in Virginia, and next provide for the faithful in Ohio.

J. M. WESTON, a leading Democrat of Michigan, after an interview with President Cleveland, said: "You can't lead him, or drive, or sway him."

A WASHINGTON dispatch of the 28th says: "Walter Cleary, of Covington, a member of the last Legislature, arrived to-day. He wants to be Special Revenue Agent, the place Tom Stuart is after. There are a number of applicants for the place.

MRS. GARFIELD is reported to be willing to remarry. The managers of the Garfield Hospital, chagrined at her neglect of the institution, are desirous of changing its name, as the present name has brought no good fortune to that worthy charity.

THE only one of the officials of Rowan County who have dared to remain is Major Casey, the County Clerk, and he has been warned several times to leave. The Judge, Sheriff, Marshall and Deputies have all fled. A Deputy Sheriff has been waylaid and killed and the County Attorney wounded. Lawlessness reigns and a bloody outbreak is not improbable at any time.

THE following is from the Lexington Transcript: It is proposed to enforce the law providing that peddlers shall pay a license of $100 a year. By a recent decision of the Court of Appeals the license requirement is made to apply to all agents with the exception of sewing machine agents, agents of agricultural implements, and sellers of a few unimportant articles. The law is sweeping in its character, being applicable to all classes of peddlers, even including the newboys that sell papers in the streets. At present the consternation is chiefly confined to the book agencies, the managers of which, being unable to secure agents that can pay the license, hence their business is greatly embarrassed. There does not appear to be any escape from the license law, and it remains to be seen whether it will be enforced against all who are classed as peddlers.

The Uncrowned Irish King.
"After all," says the New York World, "what a satire it seems on the much-boasted power of the British throne when the Prince of Wales visits Ireland virtually by the permission of Mr. Parnell." Wales is by no means the first man, however, who has been forced to acknowledge that Mr. Parnell is "the uncrowned King of Ireland." The English landlords have repeatedly made that acknowledgment, and it will not be long before the English Parliament will be compelled to recognize his authority by according to his demands and granting Ireland home rule.

Everything Goes.
(Detroit Free Press.)
"I believe I was shot dead once more," he said to the Sergeant at the Central station, as he was asked to take a car and report his errand.

"How?"
"Well, I was in my place about two hours ago, when two strangers shook in, and one of 'em said to me:—
"Skeke, I has bet on you. I know you vvas a great man but I has confidence in human nature and I bet $2,500 oop, dot you vvas bet on me."
"Well, I dunno, I neler see him pefore, but if sonebody bet $2 on me, I doun like to lose it, and maybe he also doun like to lose it."
"And you let him have it?"
"Well, I has some confidence in human nature. He vvas a bet on me, and I has feefly cent, and my life says I vvas der piggest fool in Detroit."

"And what do you want of me?"
"I like to know if you vvas der piggest fool in Detroit."

"Yes, sir, I do! You'll never see your money again."

"My son Carl says I petter seek my head, I like to know if you think dot vvas der piggest fool in Detroit."

"Und my brudder-laws says I made a fine lunatic asylum all by myself. Vvas he correct?"
"He is."

"Vvas, dot vvas all. If I vvas right I got mad and clean out der shanty. If I vvas wrong I go home and keep still until my head vvas soaked nought to lose my confidence in human nature. Dot vvas all—good day."

How the R. R. Springer sank.
VICKSBURG, Miss., April 1.—The clerk of the steamer R. R. Springer, Mr. Charles Church, who has arrived in this city on the steamer Natchez, gives the following particulars in regard to the accident to the Springer: The boat struck the foot of Cole's creek bar, three miles below Waterproof. It was soon discovered that she was making water very fast. The work of throwing freight overboard commenced, and about 100 tons was thrown into the river. It was thought she could be kept afloat. The passengers were all, with their baggage, safely landed in a cotton field, and a sufficient quantity of provisions was taken from the boat's store to give all a breakfast. Tables and chairs sufficient to seat the passengers were taken from the boat's cabin. The steamer arrived at the wreck and all the passengers went aboard of her. It was soon evident that the Springer with her immense cargo of freight was going down, and when the Natchez left there the hurricane force was under way. The stern sank to the cabin floor. All the books and the personal effects of the crew are safe. Capt. G. W. Thompson, commander, remained at the wreck. The passengers of the Springer all came up on the Natchez, and will make the trip on her to New Orleans.

RIEL'S REBEL REVOLT.

ENGLAND'S TOY WAR ASSUMING SERIOUS PROPORTIONS.

The Liberal Party Leader Denounces False Rumors and Makes Liberal Threats. Annoying Complications—Guerrilla Warfare.

OTTAWA, April 1.—A lively scene occurred in the house of commons. The Hon. Edward Blake, leader of the liberal party, read an article from a conservative paper, which hinted that the liberals incited the half-breeds to fly to arms, and supplied them with rifles. In forcible language he denounced the slander, and spoke of the loyalty of the liberal party. His passion rose gradually, and he could barely control himself. The spectators in the galleries and members on the floor became greatly agitated. Tears came to the speaker's eyes when he stated that the blood of his cousin had already stained the snow on the scene of the late encounter near Duck Lake.

His nephew was on a train moving to the front and his son and brother's son had offered their services. Subsequently when speaking of arms furnished the volunteers he said he and the people of the country would hold Sir John Macdonald responsible if any accident occurred to the forces because they were not supplied with the very best rifles procurable.

"No matter what might be the expense," he added, "it would be nothing less than murder to send soldiers to the Northwest not properly armed, as the rebels have the best Remington repeating rifles."

The minister of militia said that he had issued all the Martini-Henry rifles now on hand, and the best arms and accoutrements would be furnished the men.

Sir John Macdonald said that no further startling intelligence had been received. The white settlers in the disaffected districts were very uneasy. Sir John said he received a telegram that the Indian chiefs Poundmaker and Little Pine had donned the war paint not far from Battleford and had many braves with them. A large militia force will move on to that place as rapidly as possible.

The government has not as yet heard definitely whether Col. Irvine or the rebels burned Fort Carlton.

The minister of militia said that every precaution had been taken for arming the troops. Besides the forces already ordered out the following troops have been ordered to start immediately: Thirty-fifth battalion, under Lieut. Col. O'Brien, M. P.; corps of sharpshooters from the governor general's foot guards of Ottawa; and a squad of scouts. A total force of 1,514 men has already been ordered out. The cowboy cavalry has been organized and will start out from Ft. McLeod over the prairies.

Gen. Middleton has telegraphed the government that he found the feeling of uneasiness in the northwest much greater than he supposed. He requests the government to have 2,000 additional troops in readiness for departure, as in case the Indians rise he considers that 4,000 troops will be required to cope with them. The government had been under the impression that the Indians would not rise, but three chiefs who were considered friendly have gone on the warpath.

Guerrilla Warfare.

TORONTO, April 1.—A movement is on foot here to get twenty young men who have the means and courage, and who are willing to undergo hardships to band together on guerrilla warfare and to bring Riel in dead or alive. They will go through the United States as civilians and will procure an outfit costing about $200 in Winnipeg. They will style themselves the Toronto rangers.

Blackmailer Nailed.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 1.—The house by the adoption of the report of an investigating committee dismissed J. M. Tryon, of Houston, clerk of the judiciary committee, for conduct unbecoming an employee. About a month ago Alexander Sampson, whom the senate summarily dismissed from office as a casual clerk, wrote a letter to a well known bucket shop proprietor of Galveston, stating that a pending bill in the legislature, known as the "bucket shop" bill, which prohibits speculation in grain and stock futures—could be suppressed if the bucket shop men would pay Tryon $1,500. In the letter Sampson said: "Between us Tryon can pigeon-hole the bill. It need never see daylight if the introduction is quieted." Representative, Tankersley, of Houston, introduced the bill. The reading of Sampson's letter on the floor of the house by Representative Fisher, of Galveston, created the greatest sensation among members and spectators. Representative Fisher in a vigorous speech, exposed the doings of the laund of corrupt blackmailers, who he said had infected the legislative halls since the opening of the session.

A Columbus Theater Burned.

COLUMBUS, O., April 1.—The Eureka theater, located in the rear of the American house, has burned. It had been an old stable, and burned like a tinder box. The building was owned by the heirs of Brock Walcott. The loss will reach $30,000. Sam Douglas was the owner of the contents, including fixtures, wardrobe and properties, which were all destroyed. These were insured for $2,000. Engleker & Biglow's stable and Andy Schwarz's plumbing establishment, adjoining, were saved only by the efforts of the fire department. The origin of the fire is not known. Douglas and a boy who slept in the building, had a narrow escape. The fire succeeded in closing a disreputable place, which was more than the police could do.

He Twanged the Harp of War

LINCOLN, Ill., April 1.—The Rev. Mr. White condemned the Catholic religion and the Roman clergy in a lecture, whereupon forty or fifty Catholic ministers present rioted, using the hall chairs. The injured are White, the lecturer, cut on the head and face; Johnston, the hall manager, severely injured; Henderson, a college student, badly beaten. Two or three others were slightly hurt. The police were so powerless in their efforts to preserve the peace.

Starting in life as a bookbinder he became one of Louisville's most prominent men commercially and socially. He was thrice elected mayor of the city.
